

9th International Conference on Humanities, Social Sciences and Lifestyle

Survey and comparison of Qasr Surmaq and Tal Kaftari (Bahram Goor) in the north of Fars

Reza Khosravanian

Master of Archeology, Historical Orientation,
Faculty of Literature and Humanities, Islamic Azad
University, Central Tehran Branch, Tehran, Iran,

Abstract

The ancient world is a very mysterious and complex world about which some information about it seems almost possible and difficult to get acquainted with ancient societies and study it, each period must be studied in a specific field. What is very important in this treatise is the role and position of Bahram V Sassanid (Bahram Gour) in the northern region of Persia and the abundance of ancient Sassanid orthographic evidence in this region, the most important of which were the palaces of Bahram V Sassanid (Bahram Gour). Pahlavi, Sassanid, stone and four-arched tombs, etc. can be seen in this area and has caused the north of Fars as a special area that is considered in terms of climate, vegetation and hunting ground by the fifth Sassanid Bahram (grave) and caused the construction of buildings and palaces for It will be a spring and summer rest and hunting ground in this region, and it is hoped that with a little of what is included in this article, it will attract the attention of archeology lovers.

Keywords: Sassanids, North of Persia, Qasr, Bahram Goor.